SERGIO DAVÌ HERO OF TWO OCEANS. FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC CROSSING BY THE CANAL OF PANAMÀ.

About a month ago we saw him “double” his atlantic record with the great crossing from Cape Verde to French Guyana in just six non stop sailing days. Now we see him “conquering” the coveted Pacific Ocean crossing by the Canal of Panamà, a charming and extraordinary infrastructural work that has seen, for its building, the participation of many Italians.

After the Caribbean stopovers in Port of Spain and Curaçao, Sergio Davi, master of the “Ocean to Ocean RIB Adventure”, had taken advantage of the long technical stop in the beautiful Colombian city of Cartagena for a check-up on the two DF300Bs outboards, scheduled with Suzuki Motor de Colombia and a general check on the New Jolly Prince 38cc and on the Simrad on-board instruments which to date confirm high performance and none “stress” from extreme sailing.

The transit operation along the Canal of Panama has been quite delicate and long, not only during the navigation of 8 hours and 30 minutes for only 49 nautical miles (which took place at night), where it is necessary to carefully follow all instructions provided by the Canal Authority, but above all during the steps before the authorization for which it was necessary to wait 8 days. Before the transit, capt. Davi and his Aretusa Explorer (alias Nuova Jolly Prince 38cc) have been welcomed by the Shelter Bay Marina in Forte Sherman (on the Atlantic entry of the Canal), where the needed (and expensive) inspections have been also carried out.

Special guest, Stefano Germani, financial manager of I-Tronik, who reached captain Davi in Colombia to offer him his help and support during the Panamanian crossing. In fact, transit instructions include to have an aid on board able to manage instructions by radio and the ropes in case of transit in a convoy * (* ie several boats lined up).

With the arrival at Pacific a new adventure in the adventure starts for Davi and the meaning of the name of the expedition - Ocean to Ocean RIB Adventure – becomes real: and adventure by RIB from an ocean to another one!

However, the mission cannot yet be said to have been accomplished. There are still 3,000 nautical miles to sail until the final destination!

To keep updated about the Ocean to Ocean RIB Adventure it's enough consult official Facebook (Sergio Davi Adventures) e Instagram (@sergiodavi_adventures) social pages.

Furthermore, it is possible to follow real time the captain and his Aretusa Explorer by the following GPS tracker link made by SGS Tracking: <http://www.sgstracking.com/live/index.html?id=263> .
